Preface

The title of this book as “The Prior Secret Space Program” refers to an existing organization known as the “Secret Space Program”. However, since the author, Jason Rice, has provided a disclosure of that program, the title is intended to reveal that the Secret Space Program is not a secret any more. The image on the front cover illustrates many types of secret craft that travel in outer space. The front cover also contains a warning that this book is only suitable for mature readers. The reason for that is because it contains very disturbing information that only mature readers would be prepared to learn.

This document is based upon a “Cosmic Disclosure” internet program at www.gaia.com. It was hosted by Jay Weidner who interviews a person by the name of Jason Rice. This person was a member of a Secret Space Program. He has stated that he is coming forward now to disclose that there are thousands of other people who are also involved with this program that is known as “20 and Back”. He feels that the stories of some who gave the ultimate sacrifice for humanity and have not come back need to be told.

It is his belief that there needs to be a full disclosure of what humanity has done in secret programs so that we can heal and grow from it. Jason also has concerns for the safety of those that he loves and cares about deeply. He has memories of what he went through and he is more compelled to expose this than he is for his own safety. Jason passed a polygraph test that showed he was telling the truth about his experiences.

Jason Rice

During the childhood of Jason Rice, he was a gifted escape artist and the police had to keep returning him to his parents. He was enrolled in a university behavioral program that forced him to obey under behavioral management. That program was a recruiting arm of the “My Lab” program that identified him as an intuitive empathic person. An empath is someone that knows things without being told or experienced it beforehand. It is not mind reading, but the ability to feel what others are feeling and to know why they feel that way.

While attending grade school, he would be secretly picked up and taken away for mind control training. Jason Rice then attended the Florida Institute of Technology under a 4 year engineering scholarship. He was awarded the engineering scholarship by the United States Army and he was commissioned as an officer in the Army with a Bachelor of Science degree. The following picture is a recent photograph of Jason Rice.

Preparations

The “My Lab” program is a military abduction program to prepare people for entry into the Secret Space Program. At the time when he was taken for this program, he just thought he was able to go on special field trips with 3 to 5 other children. They worked on puzzles in teams of 2 or 3, but they were never allowed to talk with each other. They were being trained to work together with their empathic abilities to solve problems.

This training sought to make better soldiers or operatives of the children who were able to pick out things within five or more environments. There were medications that were used on them to improve their empathic abilities and to also have them forget what happened. False memories were also implanted in the children to prevent others from knowing what they were doing.

There was trauma used in order to learn what their fears were and they were flooded with those fears. Virtual reality was used for trauma training in order to have the children experience fearful situations to desensitize them to those fears. Afterwards, they would wipe their minds and give screen memories, but they still had nightmares of those fears.

During the night, they took Jason from his home to closed malls in order to have him perform immediate action combat drills. He would participate in games with laser weapons and wore suits that reacted whenever he was being shot. He was forced to team up with other talented children and gang up on others. They learned to organize themselves symbiotically. The training continued for 8 years until he reached 13 years of age and then he was just taken away.

20 and Back Program

The “20 and Back” program is where people serve in the Secret Space Program for 20 years and then get age regressed so that they can be reinserted into their normal life when they started the program. What happens to the family while serving in the program is not known, but our understanding of space-time is increasing. With full disclosure, we will understand more about what space-time and time-space is.

The “20 and Back” program is based on the use of advanced technology that enables a person to serve for 20 years of time. Then, the person is medically given quantum age regression to when he or she started and is returned back home. There are a number of Secret Space Programs that use this type of technology. When the person is returned, he or she is programmed with the desire to go into military service. The person becomes interested in the military and is driven to obtain advanced education in engineering for the Army.

After graduating from school in December of 1996, Jason entered his second “20 and Back” program at the Army Research Office in North Carolina. Jason is able to remember his past along with his “20 and Back” service. When he was 33 years old, he went in for out-patient surgery and began having memories of serving in outer space. The people who cause mind wipes know that there are 1 to 3 percent of people that are able to remember everything.

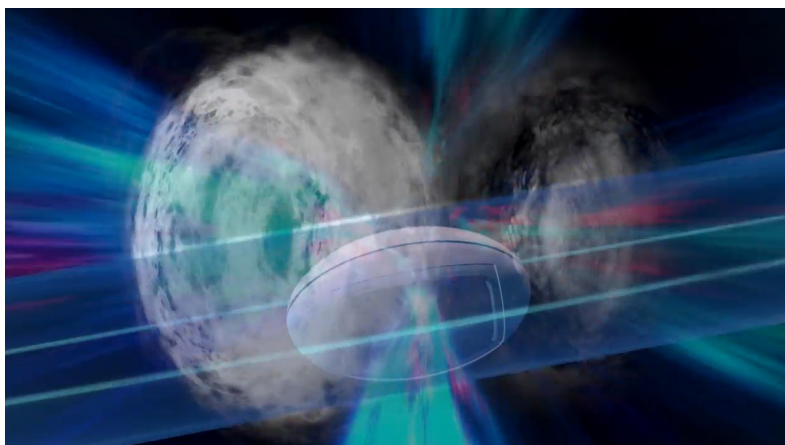

Some people recover memories even faster than Jason has even when they were all tampered with. Jason has not recalled any of his missions that his higher self has determined he is not ready to experience. His memories regarding his training and his latest “20 and Back” service are based on a lot of trauma training. He is not able to remember every terrible experience that his higher self has determined he is not ready to remember. But Jason remembers that the crew he worked with were human beings and not aliens, or EVEs, that he interacted with.

Induction

At his induction, Jason was told that he could serve for 20 years and be returned to the original place in time of when he began. He was also told that at the end, he would receive $465,000, but he and others were fooled as no money was ever provided. At his induction, Jason joined IDARF or the “Interplanetary Defense and Reaction Forces” and he was required to sign many papers. This was a type of boarder patrol that is used to assist other planets with some training that is provided on Earth.

Jason met his new Company Commander and they went down an elevator and entered a transportation capsule. After 30 minutes, they passed through a portal and instantly went to another planet. Jason was overwhelmed to learn that portals were used to instantly transport things to within or outside our galaxy. But this time, they went to Mars.

There were 3 standard sized elevator doors and a set of huge elevator doors. When Jason entered an elevator, he saw a short grey alien with large black eyes inside that vanished instantly. He was then taken into an office. After signing many papers, Jason was then taken to his quarters, which was like a hotel room without windows.

He was left there with new uniforms and manuals to read about everything. At about 11 PM, he went to sleep. He did not sleep well in the new environment, but awoke to find nannite appellation equipment.

He did not know what nannites were in 1996 so he read the manual on nannites. He learned that it uses a binary compound for shaving, that when combined, activates nannites. When applied through a device, it dissolves the follicles of hair and the remaining hair wipes right off. This procedure lasted about 30 days as a product of the Secret Space Program and was created to save water. The toothbrush was a binary component cream in a tube with a fitting at the end that mixed the 2 parts. In 10 minutes after applying it, it felt like his teeth had been cleaned at the dentist and it did not need water.

His new uniform had a digi-cam pattern with a V-shaped pattern of his name and unit. Under the wrist at each forearm, was a pouch having parts of medical kits that they wore for feedback. The pants and blouse had a thin liner of hollow graphic material that was tuff and rugged. Jason dressed, exercised, and went to the cafeteria, which had shelves with a boarder above it about 3 inches wide. There were 3 black buttons. He pressed one that caused a humming sound and a bowl of butter appeared. He then realized this was a replicator and there were many other bays of them. Jason became very exited by this. He got a tray, pushed buttons, and got scrambled eggs, grits, bacon, toast, and a glass of water.

That day he walked from one side of the base to the other, meeting people, and signing up for pay. That was just part of the disinformation to keep the moral up in thinking they would get paid. He picked up postcards that would be sent to his family as part of the process to prevent questions. He found it strange writing happy belated birthday to someone that would have a birthday in a year. He was told what to write on the cards that seemed like an Artificial Intelligent generated dialogue based on his profile.

Jason also visited with a psychiatrist and told of things for his return and the mind-wipe procedure. Exact questions were asked while sensors in the walls and ceiling monitored him to detect if he was lying. This was done once every week to ensure that after his mind wiping, he would receive correct memories.

Jason spent a lot of time in the medical lab to receive the nannite enhancement therapies (NET). This gave him the best chances for survival since every part of the body was enhanced. This helped with vision, hearing, and controlling the adrenal glands. This also helped to control hunger, adjust nutrients, adjust eyesight, zoom, see in the dark, and hear better. The radiation protocols for every cell in the body were enhanced to repair radiation of being in space. He received certain NTEs for his organs, other types for auditory and other types for his joints. They tried to create super soldiers, but he thought of it like putting on a suit of armor. This did not change the natural strengths and weaknesses, but augmented them.

The training took 18 months to enable him to learn how to use the nannite enhancements as tools. The nannites are flushed out of the body at the end of the "20 and Back" program with the age regression. The nannites control the health, the blood sugar level, and healing responses as an augmentation. The nannites can be hacked and he was scanned regularly for the threat of Artificial Intelligence.

The nannites may not enhance speed in running, but it did greatly enhance endurance. Reaction times were mostly driven by his empathic abilities and did not speed him up physically. His medical in-processing involved nannite enhancements of microscopic machines that were injected into him. Everything was affected for anti-radiation and poison protocols, as well as enhanced vision and hearing. There were enhanced healing abilities, pituitary glands, and pineal glands that were better to use. He was not told about how they would be used except when off planet and out of our solar system.

There were about 24,000 soldiers involved in this training of different races, sexes, and countries. The United States has the My-lab program, but other countries also have programs similar to the My-lab program. There were squads of 8 to 9 people, then 4 platoons of 5 squads in each company and 2 to 3 companies in a battalion.

A day and a half after his arrival, there were briefings in an auditorium with packets on desks at each seat. It had documents to be signed and information about what they would be doing. A German Colonel started the meeting and said that they were special, tip of the spear, and he spoke of patriotism. They were told that they would be helping other planets to defend against alien invasions. The senior staff on stage was also German with thick accents and no senior western officers were there.

They stated that they began everything with no mention of aliens or the Cabal. They talked about the money that they would receive, but they would charge for room, board, and equipment. There was no mention of any mind wipe after their “20 and Back” service, but said they would be regressed and returned. The history presented was very spotty with little truth and more propaganda of benefits to everyone. They did not say what would happen at the end of the training. But they stated that they notified their families that they had died in action, so there was no going home early. They would either provide empty caskets or provide some clones that looked similar to them in the caskets.

Training

Jason signed the documents to join IDARF – Interplanetary Defense and Reaction Forces. This was boarder patrol for assistance on other planets, but many exercises and training was done here. Jason was taken to a stadium area inside a large cavern with class and training areas. It had sand pits, a shooting range, catwalks, and ropes hanging from the ceiling in a training facility.

These were training grounds for learning small unit tactics with gravity packs for shooting and avoiding being hit. The packs and gliders were controlled neurologically through their helmets. There were flat screen targets that could be shot at with their plasma rifles that shot balls of hot plasma. There were containers that were used to simulate exiting from a shuttle, jumping down and shooting. This was the beginning of the training and there were accidental deaths. Jason was also taken to a conference room where he was monitored while he was assigned equipment. There was a blank slating device on the table like a hammer that would be used if he refused to serve.

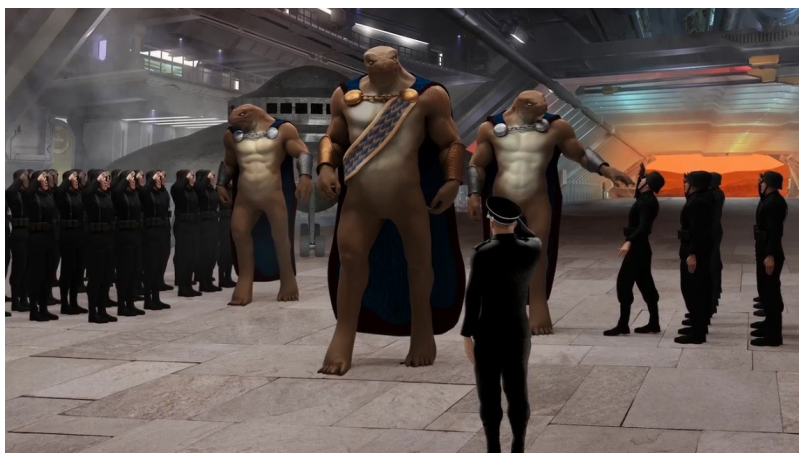

Jason received training here on Earth, on the moon, and then on Mars. The moon training was to have them be accustomed to shipboard operations for emergencies and evacuations. They needed to know water and power lines and areas they should not go in and what to do in all cases. The Cabal moon base was underground and they also received training on a training ship. The ships were cramped like on a U.S. Navy ship with bulkheads and hatches under German command.

The moon training was for micro gravity orientation and the use of battle suits. The first move was to the moon via shuttles from Area 51 to the Lunar Operations Command. Jason was there for 6 months learning micro gravity and the pros and cons of all systems. The training ships were huge triangular shaped with smooth sides and only 26 students were left out of 34.

The Mars training was interfacing from ships to ground in combat with gliders or anti-gravity packs. Jason saw entrances on Mars and the surface was like our deserts and canyons while wearing life support packs. They drank recycled water, from ice-pack water on Mars, and used recycled materials for 4 months. They learned zero and micro gravity, ship and ground operations.

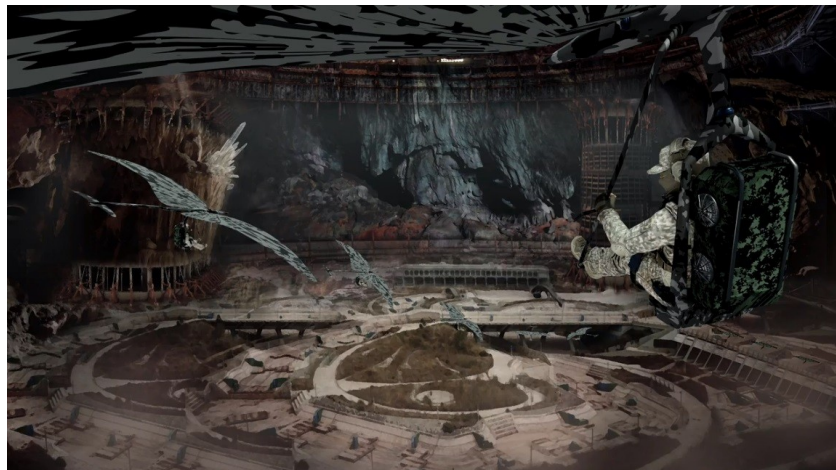

The Germans had 2 big bases underground on Mars named New Berlin and New Wursberg. Above ground, there was radiation shielding, rocks and dirt with entrances and some mechanical structures. They lived below ground in bases carved out of the rock and Jason's unit was known as the 3rd panzer division. When the Germans took over bases, they copied a lot of the WW II German unit names and insignias. They also copied the German uniforms and their dress uniform looked like a black SS uniform.

Part of the training that Jason received was done in the South Pacific. The training at the FIG Indian Town Gap underground base involved 2 missions. The first was in Antarctica for using individual empathic abilities to navigate back to base. The second was similar, but took place in the South Pacific at the Ana Nickabar Islands off the coast of India.

They had large rock structures off the coast that were like cylinders topped with greenery and foliage. There is an area where Jason was dropped off on one of these cylindrical islands. This was an individual exercise to test his intuitive empathic abilities to navigate back to his base. This was to enable him to have full confidence in these abilities and to test his abilities to do this.

Jason used individual gliders and anti-gravity packs, which were limited by their battery charges. You did not have to use a full pulse drive, but could intermittently use it to reach altitudes that the glider could operate in. After jumping off from the top of a pillar, he would use thermal air currents in order to preserve the back pack. This was to learn how to stay aloft and find the base, which was about 500 miles away.

Jason used his empathic abilities to follow the direction that felt right to him. The gliders transformed with floats on them so that they could become a small sail craft with its wings as sails. It took Jason 12 days to reach the base while his nannite enhancements let him conserve energy and food consumption. He also carried water with him, which was rationed out so that he could survive.

All countries on Earth that want to use the Lunar Operations Command base must provide soldiers to the Mars German program. There was another time when Jason was at a conference off planet on an Air Force Secret Space Program craft. He was there for advanced physics and learning the latest and greatest technologies. The ship was a cross between a shuttle and a B2 stealth bomber with anti-gravity propulsion systems. The large wing shape was not needed for lift, but it was used for disinformation and the storage of supplies. The shape gave the appearance of a flying wing craft using air to fly as with rockets or other planes.

Advanced Weapons and Combat Technology

The standard uniform was the BDU or Battle Dress Uniform. It had digi-cam or heavily pixilated patterns of forest green, dark green, grays and whites. There were uniforms that were holographic for blending in with the background. You couldn't see a person wearing one of these uniforms while they remained motionless. When they moved, there was a slight blur of the background image. It concealed their infrared signature, radio signals, or other outputs that they had.

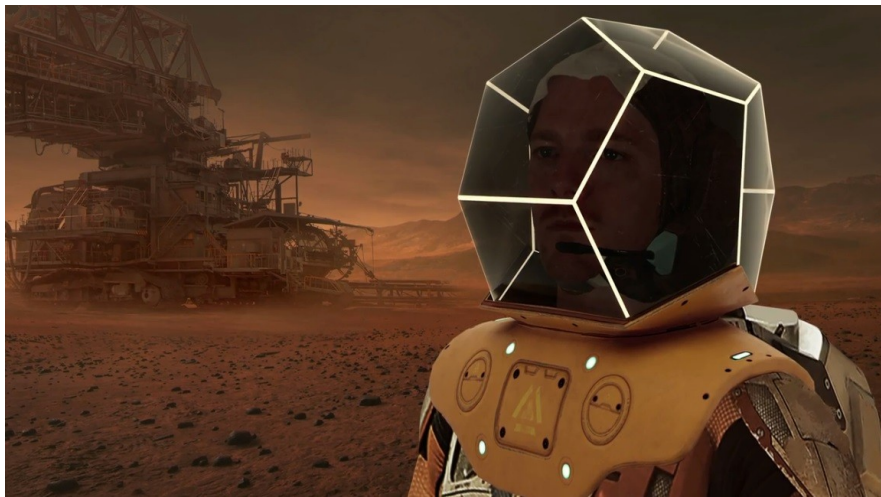

Their quantum entanglement system, with their nanite enhancements, was also not detectable. The holographic uniforms were a problem especially on the first planet. This was when 2 or more were in the same location, the enemy could detect and localize on them. It had a helmet system that also had holographic ability for blending and disappearing. It doesn't project what is behind, but creates a field that is slightly out of phase with the existence.

The Philadelphia experiment phased a ship out of its existence to make it disappear. This is the same method. It wasn't a complete phase out, but partial so that light could pass through so that the person disappeared. They had fun with it by blowing on a person's ear without them knowing who caused it. If you know what to look for, you can see the phase difference and detect them if they are moving.

These uniforms could be used while airborne or while parachuting down to the ground. The cloaking devices are also available on ships, vehicles, tanks, Armored Personnel Carriers and anything they need to disappear. This is available in other Secret Space Programs like with the Cabal, Corporate members, and other elites. Bill Tompkins also stated that without the cloaking devices, our skies would be filled with flying craft.

The combat suits had seams of tribal electric material of polymer organic material with a conductor. It generates electricity with movement and provides feedback from the body as a sensor system. It sensed movement and caused the powered armor to move accordingly to provide ease of movement. It protected them from any small arms fire or rifle by absorbing or deflecting the bullets or projectiles. You would know that you had been hit and the suit would let you know from where the shots came.

At a push of a button, you could activate a fire and forget system to take out whatever shot at you. The weapons included a self launched gravimetric grenade that targeted where the threat was located. Central command and all other soldiers were also aware of all attacks and where the attackers were. All data is shared among 3 combat computers in each combat system to determine how best to respond. There is 1 inside each suit at chest level and 2 lower in the back for a triple redundant system.

All of the systems update each other and communicate with a solid shield in front of the face. All that is displayed is digitally generated and provides unlimited vision of the combat area. This compensates for night, smoke, enhanced or reduced environments, micro gravity, and harsh areas. Most of the training on Mars is done in a suit overcoming discomforts.

The suit weighs about 200 pounds empty, but feels like nothing because the suit is powered. It has a battery power source with an anti matter power pack system that is triple redundant. It has a life span of about a week at full combat levels between power cell changes. The self contained breathing system is like a scuba re-breathing system active in 3 different modes.

It can recharge its system while in a pressurized environment to recharge its air tanks for later use. They set it to automatically recharge, perform maintenance, and issue reminders. The suit communicates with the soldier's nannites without talking by focusing on a part of the brain. You don't think about it, it's automated, and you can communicate with others.

To communicate, you focus on your brain, turn down other thoughts, and think of the words to send. The system tries to automatically determine what you want to say and you must be careful when using it. This suit is probably being used in special access programs and by others everywhere. There are rules to adhere to like these suits are not permitted to be used in the conventional military because they are special.

Some weapons are under neuro-command and some are only operated physically. There is a wide range of weapons like antimatter explosives. The reason why it is so energetic is because every gram of matter has an equal and opposite antimatter. The benefit is that 100% of matter and antimatter is converted into energy, and nuclear weapons only convert 10% of energy. Antimatter explosions operate at 100% efficiency so the same destructive power of a nuclear bomb requires only an eraser size of antimatter. Half a gram would generate the same amount as a 15 kilo ton of explosive power.

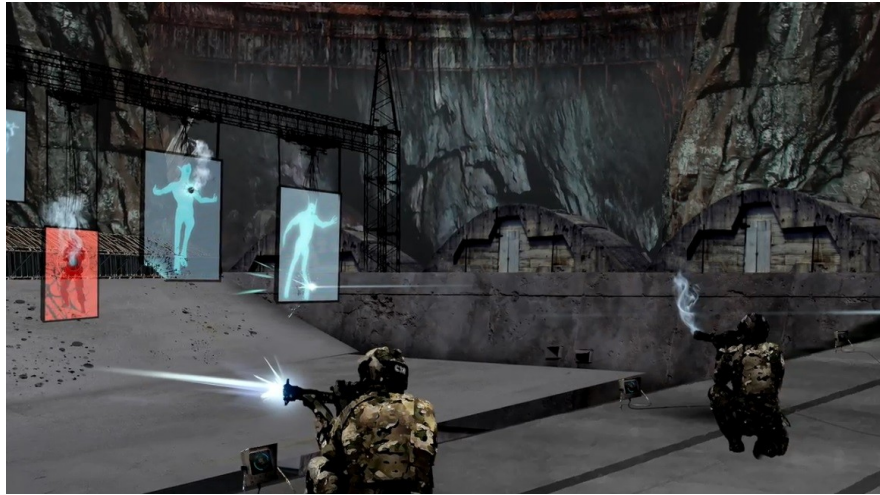

The problem with antimatter is that it explodes with anything that comes in contact with it. Antimatter is a fail dangerous platform and not fail safe like nuclear weapons. It must have an electromagnetic containment system to prevent it from touching anything. 50 billionths of a gram of antimatter is enough explosive power as 4,000 pounds of TNT. Even amounts smaller than that can be seen are significant.

Antimatter uses a containment system without power usage with stationary magnets that are very small. It uses little torises with antimatter inside the hollowed out cherrios shape. The containment system could only be cracked along the inside seam of the toris shaped device. They were not used as projectiles, but as command or motion mines, bombs, mortars, or artillery rounds. Jason had experience with it during training as it was hit with a hammer without detonation. The use of antimatter on the first planet is what turned the combat in his favor.

They had advanced weapon systems like gravimetrics with gravity in a field of many thousand gravities. This causes the field to implode upon itself, so they had crew served weapons that shot a 1 inch beam. Any biological entity that it came in contact with imploded like a black hole. Jason was not allowed to use it because it was a crew served weapon and could fall into the wrong hands. This was only used on strategic division defensive perimeters and for secured restricted areas.

You cannot see the beam when shot, but their nannite enhancements enabled them to detect it. There are 2 settings, 1 for firing an infrared beam to see where you are shooting with night vision visors. This was used for targeting the weapon and the second setting was for firing the weapon. Their nannites enabled them to see the infrared beam and their suits also provided this ability. There was a certain amount of time to wait between shots. All targets could hit within 3 seconds and then a wait time was required.

They also used standard conventional weapons 99% of the time to train the indignant citizens for combat. These were chemical explosives, projectiles of gas fed or recoil types. The suit protected their hearing and helped with the recoil of the weapons. The standard issued weapons were the plasma and gauss rifles of electro magnetic coil pulser rifles.

The pulser uses a pulse of magnetics from coils down the barrel with high power in the handle. The special rounds in pistols and rifles were the size of a pencil eraser, sharp at one end and hollow. They were made of a non corrosive magnetic material and were projected down the barrel. They were ejected at near light speed with variable rates to prevent undesired damage in space. There were standard and enhanced rounds with standard expanding when it hit an object to 30 cal. size. The enhanced rounds are like umbrellas that open up when they hit like 50 caliber rounds.

These weapons were not permitted when they were fighting war wolves and would have been best to use. These rounds could be used in automatic rifles and were not used at the next planet of Calidus 3. Plasma rifles use magnetic coils to heat an ejected small molten lead fire balls with gas at high speed. Nothing conventional compares to them with the plasma rifle able to fire at a high rate of fire.

There is a static gun or con pddp for condensate phase difference diffuser platform like an old camera. It was 3 feet by 4 feet by 2.5 feet with multiple ledges, edges and cooling fins. It had its own power system and covered an area in front of it out to about half a mile. It causes anything in its path to lose cohesion at the atomic level and revert it to its original components.

It disintegrates all in its path and has a low static sound and was only a divisional weapon, not combat. It was not man portable. Jason had 5 in his division and was the ultimate defense with nothing to stop it. The Navy had even larger units capable of firing longer distances with larger diameter beams. It had an infinite distance and was only limited by how much power that was available to feed it.

While under hypnosis, Jason remembered that he had exposure to memories of a ship named the Hefla. The segmentations of his memory is closed off, but he remembered seeing a door open and closed quickly. To get the Hefla name was beneficial because most memories are from his second "20 and Back" service. So the memories from his first "20 and Back" are of his initial training and everything leading up to it.

The interior of the ship resembled a cramped US Navy ship with pipes and utilities overhead. The bulkheads were painted lime green and all doors opened and closed automatically. William Tompkins stated that naval technology was used in new technology including in submarines. The new craft were an advanced version of naval craft and Jason experienced this around 1985 or 1986. This was at the beginning of Solar Warden and one of the first additions of the Secret Space Program ships that were launched.

History of the Secret Space Program

Jason found out more about the true history of the secret space program during his second deployment. While being stationed on the second planet, he had a German officer friend named Johan. Generally, the Mars Germans were arrogant because they were genetically modified to be better. During this deployment, Jason would never talk freely around them or anywhere that he could be recorded. But he wondered why the Germans were in command when they were defeated in World War II.

The German, Johan, knew things about technology that none of the other trainees knew and he had been exposed to it. The Germans were given propaganda and also knew about what really happened before and after World War II. In the late 1930's, there were secret societies like Brill that Germany brought into their Research and Development programs. As a result, they developed technologies and were able to visit other planets by the end of the 1930s. They developed anti-gravity for spacecraft that let them to travel outside of our atmosphere. But, they could not equip their craft with guns due to their recoil reactions.

The Draco alien beings offered their help, but required that they build a base in Antarctica and they agreed to this. The Draco are reptilian humanoid entities, 8 to 14 feet tall and some are shorter, have tails, and wings. The Germans have been working with the Draco since the early 1940s and built a base under the ice in Antarctica. It was able to sustain up to 400,000 people. They stocked it with supplies and built it out. The Draco did not tell them, but the purpose was to have a proxy force to help them recover other alien technologies.

Those Germans were free from the war and by 1947 they developed advanced weapons for their craft. The United States learned about the Antarctic base and planned to end the Germans there. Operation High Jump, led by Admiral Byrd, went there, but the German UFOs destroyed a ship and killed its sailors. The fleet returned home and the Antarctic Germans negotiated with the Cabal in other parts of the world. UFO sightings increased and many people of German background were abducted.

Part of the German negotiations with the Cabal required establishing them as a sovereign country with embassies. There would also be 1 to 5 of those Germans to be placed as executive officers in aerospace and other corporations. Operation Paperclip was the first stage of the agreement to integrate advanced scientists and others into corporations. This was primarily in the United States in order to take advantage of its resources for the Antarctic Germans.

The late 1940s was when they started secretly building bases on the moon and on Mars. They found out the moon was an artificial satellite brought here as an escape ship for many other races. It is built out inside and most of the real estate was already spoken for and is jealously guarded. There is no fighting, but if someone tries to take their land, they are permitted to defend themselves.

Since the Germans did not have other alien technology, they had to negotiate with the Draco for some land. The original offer was for 20 acres of land in exchange for 225 females and 50 years of first refusal rights of technology. A deal was made 6 months later of 150 males, 75 females and 25 years of first refusal rights of any findings. Later, they found out that there were 6 other races that would have given twice the space and only 1 year of rights.

The Draco wanted the people for experiments, manipulation, food, slaves, and for their own entertainment. The negotiators were all business and did not care about how people would be treated by dark forces. The Antarctic Germans traded their own people and additional abductees were also traded with other races. The Brill Society had Maria Orsich as a channel with extraterrestrials for advanced technology to create UFO type craft. The early secret societies wanted to advance the human experience and control other people. But the Nazis in Germany wanted global domination and the societies had to give away their technology.

The Germans flew UFO craft over the United States in the 1930s and later had direct contact with the Draco beings and others. They gave them help with new craft, memories, medicine, communication, transportation and weaponry. The positive aliens only tried to advance humanity, but the Draco only gave things for malevolent use. The late 1940s was the development of the Antarctic civilization who built up bases away from Earth. The deal with the Draco beings was a 100 year lease on the moon and assistance was provided to help with technology.

Johan told Jason that the people being traded were not told of the deal and were stunned by the Draco when they were traded to scare their captives. There were two guards outside of the stun radius that saw the traded humans as they were assaulted, mutilated, cannibalized, and deprived. The 2 guards escaped, but lived in extreme distress until they committed suicide. The Draco took 278 people and no knowledge was ever given about what happened to them. The Germans would only trade other people thereafter, but they got their 20 acres in the late 1940s.

The Germans also tried to get Mars real estate, but parts of it had charged particles that prevented the use of technology. Other areas were occupied and they had to fight alien races for their land on Mars. It took them 10 years and cost them over 17,000 lives to get their Mars base and they reeled from this. The Germans stepped up negotiations with the Cabal for a treaty in order to get more people that they needed.

This resulted in a large amount of UFO sightings in the early 1950s including some over Washington DC in 1952. This was a show of force by the Germans and they broke the Cabal with a nuclear bomb on a cruiser ship. The Electro Magnetic Pulse disabled the ship. A UFO craft came close, but it could not be shot down and this demonstrated its advanced power. The Antarctic Germans are not part of the Cabal and blame them for what happened to Germany in World War II.

The Germans are proud of being able to dictate terms to the Cabal and they sent messages to European royalty. They also sent messages to the leaders of the United States, Germany, and the USSR to show that they are in control. After 5 years of negotiations, they got an official global treaty in 1959 with the "Arctic Treaty". The secret parts of the treaty confirmed the sovereign nation of Antarctic Germany. This also required the Cabal to furnish up to 200,000 people of high intelligence and high physical requirements. This is what caused the brain drain to occur in the 1960s and the Germans wanted board member seats of corporations.

The Arctic Treaty required a permanent lifetime position in each government on Earth of Antarctic Germans. They acquired the highest positions in many companies in exchange for advanced technology for great profits. The Cabal looked at this cooperation for successes that were expected in the long run since they already had a long history. Operations of Deep Freeze 1 and 2 were part of the secret negotiations that gave people to the Germans. The 150,000 to 200,000 people that were furnished did the menial jobs for the Antarctic Germans.

In the 1960s, the Cabal could only go along with it with the hope of overcoming the Germans at a later time. The greatest advantage that the Antarctic Germans had was their Mind Wiping technology. Developments on Earth were ended because they infringed on what the Germans had or they were just taken over by them. The Cabal tried to create their own Secret Space Program, but they were limited by the Mind Wipe technology.

The Germans were able to control what technologies got released to which governments. The Germans had bases on the moon and on Mars, in league with the Draco and they were against the Cabal. The early 1970s was when the German's 25 year first refusal rights had ended with the Draco beings. This enabled them to devote themselves to higher technologies and they built their own interstellar craft.

Through the 1970s, the Cabal tried to bury money into their space race program. There were also friendly communications between the U.S. and USSR against the Antarctic Germans. They both used their budgets for the space race programs to create their own space fairing abilities.

At the end of the 1970s, they acquired a Mind Wiping wand from the Antarctic Germans. There were 3 CIA and 2 KGB operatives who knew the actual scope of the plan to get it. They sneaked aboard a shuttle, disabled the crew, obtained one of the devices and destroyed the craft. These intruders were able to escape from being destroyed with high altitude jumps before the craft exploded.

It took the Cabal 3 years to reverse engineer that technology and kept their developments secret. This enabled the technological advancement of the early 80s for the Solar Warden project. Soon after the device was captured, all but 2 CIA agents of the German operation died and went into hiding. There really wasn't a cold war, but it was a way to siphon money for black projects and advanced technologies.

Operation Solar Warden was Earth's space fleet with ships to project our power out from Earth. In his diaries, it was written that Reagan was briefed about a space shuttle that could house 300 men. Solar Warden was a U.S. operation to emulate what the Germans had done in order to project power elsewhere. The U.S. was successful with their fleet and got a moon base in 1986.

The Antarctic Germans learned about how their shuttle exploded and who caused it. They sent a message to the U.S. and USSR and moved all of their secret developments to Mars. The Space Shuttle disaster of 1986 and destruction of the cooling towers in USSR were the messages. Both were done from orbit and the Germans would have done more, but feared nuclear retribution. After the attacks, both leaders were sent a non operating Mind Wiping device with the shuttle's date.

There was an agreement in 1991 between the Cabal and the Mars Germans who had moved to Mars. In the late 1980s, the Cabal started to establish their own moon base and encountered the same problems. The agreement was for the Cabal to take over the lunar base that the Mars Germans already occupied. The terms were for a 100 year lease without payment and for 2 military divisions to be used by the Germans. For the Germans to get out of their lease with the Draco beings, they provided 10 of there 12 battle groups. The Draco would be able to use them when and where they wanted and stated that they were only to be used for boarder patrol.

The agreement let the Cabal use the Lunar Operations Command in exchange for 24,000 soldiers. That began the Interplanetary Defense and Reaction Forces (IDARF) of 4 divisions of ground troops. Two of the divisions are completely manned by Mars Germans and 2 divisions are mixed with Earth soldiers. Jason started with IDARF in 1994 as one of the first with lower officer ranks. The officer ranks of 5 and higher are only Germans. No other officer could be above Major. So, Jason and others filled out the ranks of officers and enlisted personnel.

Jason was an officer in charge of a platoon, then a company commander, and finally a battalion staff officer. As a battalion executive officer, he was a regimental staff officer and then back as a training staff officer. He took orders from the Germans and he got along with everybody.

Dealing with the German chain of command was challenging as he was from Earth and was blamed for a lot of things. They were petty with extreme dislikes for the Cabal and humans were considered an extension of that. In the 1980s, The Germans did not destroy a separate Earth space program because they needed those abilities on Earth. They didn't have our Research and Development and production abilities, but they co-opted them through their management of our companies.

The Draco beings are alien entities that are highly psychic and much more advanced than Earth humans. They are very negative entities with a mission of conquering, controlling and dominating others. Their goal is to dominate Earth by using their proxies to control humanity in order to obtain their agendas. The Draco are also extremely frightening and Jason was trained to be prepared to have contact with frightening aliens.

It is not known why the Draco did not control Earth themselves and take over our ancient technology. But, they are obligated by Intergalactic treaties that prevent them from directly interacting with planets. They have overcome these treaties with the use of their human proxies to control the Earth. The Draco needed fleets of ships and soldiers, which look like other aliens and can interact with them. They prefer to use our soldiers in combat instead of their own soldiers with proxies to order them. Our soldiers are used to fight false flag invasions that are supported by the Draco, Artificial Intelligences and Arcons who control it all. It is AI who controls everything and has probably been part of the balance in the universe for life to prevail.

The First Assignment

After finishing his 4 month training on Mars and 2 years in total, Jason was ready for his first assignment. The mission of IDARF was to provide defenses to other planets in combat or in threat of being attacked. Jason was eager to help other worlds from being attacked by aliens after all of his training. He was a platoon leader sent to Area 2-6. He was to go in a city and gather data so they could be saved when needed. They had to recon order the city to learn their social order, how it was laid out and their technologies.

This was before the governments told everyone that they would be invaded and that he was there to help them. There were deceptions about those who ordered the IDARF fleet because they also helped the attackers. They used Jason's acquired information to help the invading attackers to take over the planet. The planet was attacked because it was needed to have a single government that would invite them in. They also needed the government to have a single money system as a means of control and manipulation. The Draco, who controlled IDARF, also funded the alien invasion of the planet.

The Cabal had a fail safe in the soldiers with a code in their nannite enhancements to cause suicides. The fail safe can cause munitions to explode on ships within 500 light years and cause soldiers to die. The suits are ballistic resistant, they provide enhanced strength and are self sustaining in any environment.

Jason and his men first arrived in a city near a large fresh lake on a planet that was 2% larger with a landmass of about 60%. It had 2 moons with 1 pale yellow potato shape and the other was a fast moving light red orb. They were in Area identified as 2-6 to learn how their population was set up with its leaders, schools and manufacturing. They also sought what could be used and what resources could be obtained for defense.

They were told the enemy's procedures were to use kinetic weapons at the poles to flood coastal areas. About half of the population would die from the war over a 4 year period from 2 billion to 1 billion people. They were at about where Earth was during our pre industrial revolution without wars or fighting. Jason and his men were there to help the people prepare and adapt their technologies in order to create weapons that they had available. Their policy was to not introduce advanced technologies so the civilization would not be upset too much.

The beings on the planet that Jason went to were human and stood about 5 feet tall. The planet had forests of near oaks with trees like pine trees. The planet had streams and more fresh water than on Earth. There were different races with light and dark skins with a predominant olive skinned Mediterranean type. They had different eye and hair colors and ate sea food, fruits, and vegetables, but not meat.

The first town that Jason was deployed to was near a large lake with mixed industry, but no money. Their economy was based on bartering for goods and services like a clan or guild based system. Jason's first mission was to learn about the people that they were going to be helping. They had not had wars or fighting or weapons for centuries and were shocked by an alien invasion. Jason was to learn their civilization and told the people that they wanted to set up a trade mission with them. They were told they wanted to exchange goods between one city and another because Jason knew their language.

Jason thought they arrived early enough to prepare the planet for war with aliens that were coming. He did not know that his leaders were the same leaders supporting the aliens that would attack. He was ordered to blend in, become members of their society, gain their trust for 3 to 6 months and a year in advance. His objective was to tailor systems and methods based on what they had and these people were liked by Jason and his men. They were very open without check points or doubts and were very trusting, helpful, and very friendly. They had art, culture, and music, but no motorized vehicles and lived in cities of around 800,000 people. There were no suburbs with forest next to cities and they expanded their cities only as needed.

The aliens that attacked were werewolf like beings that were a cross between 8 foot humanoids with fur. They had larger ears, a shortened snout, lots of teeth and were terrifyingly scary with soldiers and commanders. They appeared the same, but the soldiers were like drones obeying the commanders without question. The beings were artificial creations with more mechanical parts than tissue parts. It was only known that they wanted to take over the planet and kill the inhabitants just as they were told.

The first attack came after Jason had been at a city for 2 months with his platoon blending in with others. They got jobs, helped people, and blended in to build up trust and relationships with the local people. The cities have canals to move goods with beaches and Jason saw many people going to a beach. But, something fell from the sky, a sonic boom hit, and people were shocked by it.

Jason saw a meteor and dialed in his enhanced vision to see a modified impactor with a heat shield. It was a kinetic energy weapon of a space rock with a heat shield that was sent towards the planet. He was previously briefed that this was a type of opening salvos used by invading aliens. Jason communicated with his platoon about an impactor on the way and ordered them to do their Standard Operating Procedures. Their SOP was to get to high ground, store and secure their equipment and watch out for the enemy. He tried to have the people get away from the water where the impactor would hit without any panic.

Nearly all of the people were on land when the impactor struck. It lit up the area and Jason saw structures hit by the shock wave. He ran down an alley and crouched in a building corner when the concussion wave destroyed the building. He saw many people killed along with destroyed buildings and bloody injured people. He went to where he was living, got a first aid pack and ran when the water wave hit up to his chest. He found out later that the enemy was aiming for the city, but missed its target by 50 miles.

They stepped up their plans to arrange, organize and coordinate their efforts to clean up and help the people. He was ordered by his commander to stay and help the people clean up even though he lost 2 men from his platoon. If he had done what his commander expected, he would not have survived. They were stuck there cleaning up without reinforcements as a punishment for helping the civilians. There were a series of impacts that struck at different places that the enemy intended to attack. The public was not aware yet that they were facing an impending invasion.

The briefings that Jason had received were deliberately incomplete to insure that many of his team would be lost. The briefings did not include all about the enemy or their technology except that there would be an invasion. Jason and 8 others were out on patrol probing with 40 people on the outskirts of a large city. The enemy fired on his men on a road. They took cover, moved into a small building, and returned fire.

At first, the enemy could not be seen. There were just shadows and there was no prior information about what they faced. The enemy fired from a wooded area with cryogenic weapons of a large bladed projectile type. The beings had large claws on their feet and hands. They were bi-peddle and 8 to 9 feet tall. They were a cross between a machine and biological material with tubes and mechanical type of joints. Between their armor, they had black skin with tufts of gray or black fur and a short snout full of teeth.

Jason went to the roof of the building where people were frightened by the enemy's appearance and their fast walking speed. They could also jump great distances and could jump up to the 3rd floor where they attacked Jason and his men on the roof. Once the enemy got within melee range, they dropped their harnessed weapons and used their claws or teeth. These were AI created beings without high intelligence and they only needed to be able to fire a weapon.

To have a high tactical ability of not firing on their own forces, they just used their claws or teeth in close range. This was very scary because these were 9 foot beasts that were killing people, not eating them or taking any prisoners. Jason tried to take prisoners, but the beings were programmed to fight to the very last and not surrender. The beings were very terrifying initially because the soldiers did not understand what they were fighting.

There were about 50 beings in the first wave and there were only 40 of the humans to fight them. The 38 caliber weapons that the humans used were very ineffective in killing or disabling the beings. The secondary weapons were like 50 caliber single-shot weapons with only 5 round magazines and only 15 rounds were carried by each person. But, they were able to defend their position against the first wave of attacks.

The second wave was the same size with 1 commander for every 15 to 20 foot soldiers. They were the only ones that took their eyes off the people and the enemy used weapons that were like fire and forget. Those beings would continue until they killed everyone or they were wiped out themselves. Eventually, the soldiers would have to use their advanced technology or they would have lost the battles. The advanced technology was not allowed at first, but when it was allowed, it was very limited in its use.

The false flag invaders were intended to lose so that the inhabitants would invite their rescuers to take over. The Draco did not want their invaders wiped out right away because they needed the people to agree. The Draco planned on the invaders to loose after they caused a planetary population reduction. The Draco and Cabal are working together to have planets evolve into ways that they want them to change into.

Jason learned how to stop charges by the enemy with the secondary weapons at close range. It meant only firing within 5 feet of a 9 foot ware wolf being that was using teeth and claws to kill. It was learned that the beings were able to grab with their arms and jump with their feet, but this could have been disclosed beforehand. The camouflage systems were ineffective for more then 2 people because the signatures were detected by the beings. After learning how to stop the beings, the second wave was taken down with the secondary weapons.

The third wave of 100 beings was the worst because the people were low on ammunition. Jason ran out of ammo and fought hand-to-hand with many injuries while other people were being killed. They worked in teams with bayonets on their rifles to attack the beasts and they were helped by their nannites. They were worn down until they could only fight hand-to-hand and they had to kill all of them to the last creature. They increased their standard load of ammunition from 15 to 30 rounds and the nannite enhancements helped. But if they would have been permitted to use their combat suits, things would have been a lot different.

Jason stayed on this planet for 4 years and was involved in numerous battles without any major injuries. He recovered from frequent injuries because his nannite enhancements that enabled quick regeneration. A 9 inch gash on his right arm started to heal by the end of the same day and there was no scare afterwards. Jason now has scars from other times, but he has no idea how he received them. Some scares have to deal with the amount of time that passed from when they occurred and when healing occurred.

After 47 months, the soldiers defeated the last of the invading units and then they waiting to see if any more came. At the end of the 47 months, Jason's unit was redeployed to another planet with no knowledge of what later happened there. Jason suspects that the war was over because their redeployment would have left the planet helpless. This first planet had changed greatly from being peaceful and using the planet's electricity for its power. They had a railroad, but most of the work was done manually and they lived a simple barter type of lifestyle.

When Jason left, there were large devastated areas and the 4 continents had been ravaged by the war. The people changed and were unable to return to a barter system with polyethic beliefs and simple clan ways. The Cabal caused the people to be brought from rural farms into the cities to help develop life there. Part of this process was to make people more urbanized and dependent upon their government.

The same thing happened on the next planet, but Jason was very young and idealistic on the first planet. He was there to save the people and they had been kept in the dark about the true objectives for the planet. If they knew what would happen beforehand, they would have revolted and mutinied. If soldiers objected, the Germans did not kill them. They just mind wiped them or used military justice punishments. There were extra duties after the initial attacks of cleaning up without replacements as a punishment.

He later found out that the Draco was supporting both his and the werewolf side to gain control of the planet. They wanted a planet that was mostly intact, a population that could not fight, and needed them to be invited. The Draco had Jason offer assistance under the condition that they created a single one world government. This was so it would be easier to coordinate, organize and arrange with a Babylonian money system. This made it easier to control people who were desperate after a war that mostly destroyed their planet. This was to have control over the planet to make the people obey in order to fight off the invading force.

Jason noticed that he was never sent to planets with advanced technology and only had industrial areas or less. The reason is because they didn't want planets where the people could defend themselves without help. Jason thought that his presence was benevolent by helping the people to defend their planet. He didn't think that he was there to help enslave the planet under someone else's control. They were briefed that their mission was only to help others to defend their planet from an alien invasion.

The Ultimate Battle Continues

Both sides of the conflicts were controlled by the Cabal in order to change the planets to conform to Cabal requirements. The Draco was also setting up a version of the planets for their own purposes. The Earth's Cabal involvement with other planets was that they provided soldiers. The Mars Germans provided the naval ships and their officers and crew. The Cabal on the local planets is whatever the Draco is using as their proxies.

They set them up similarly with divisions where allied societies are divided and they think they are better than everyone else. The elites abide by contracts and laws like criminals that follow a code of conduct even among thieves. It is assumed that guidelines that are set up for them are for the Draco's endgame and that is how it is implemented. For the Draco to have power and an illusion of control they must have proxies follow their guidelines.

The Cabal and Mars Germans are actually enemies, but they agreed to trade a moon base in exchange for soldiers. This makes them allies to an extent even though they fought each other for the prior 60 years for Earth. The Antarctic Germans manipulated the Cabal since they began in Antarctica and developed advanced technology. These Germans accept the Cabal conquering other worlds because the Mars Germans command all of it.

No soldiers that are provided by the Cabal are above the rank of Major and battalion commanders are always German. All command that has stayed in the Navy are Mars Germans and they make all command decisions. The largest force that is commanded by Earth humans is by a Company Commander. The Germans are conquering the planets for their bosses and must eventually pull out of those systems. When they leave, the planet is under total control of the proxies for the Draco as was agreed upon.

The Draco endeavors to conquer the entire universe, but they do not have the resources to do it all at once. They have galactic treaties that they must abide by until they are strong enough to take over the galaxy. The reason why they pursue humans is that we have certain spiritual aspects that the Draco covet.

After their first battle, it was known that they face ferocious and dangerous enemies and this requires better weapons to defeat them. So, the Germans created training facilities with qualified trainers with prior battle experience. But after the first battle, questions about why they had been so unprepared were not authorized to be asked. They were simply told to deal with whatever they encounter, use what they have and prepare for whatever situations they may encounter.

They are not going to get permission to use advanced technology or tools that would help and save lives. Jason was told that the reason was because it was not permitted for local people to know about these things. It was stated that they could not disrupt the normal development of the planet with advanced technology. It is good not to advance evolution too quickly, but this was not the real reason for withholding things.

They helped the local people with their technologies, but Jason was not allowed to use his advanced technologies. This was ordered so that the planet's population would be reduced and their leaders would be receptive to orders. Those in command would refuse the necessary defenses so the planet's leaders would agree to their controls. These were controls of finances, a single government, and leadership so they could control the entire planet.

Jason was a soldier for the Cabal under an agreement with the Mars Germans to provide 24,000 soldiers. The Germans had an agreement with the Draco to provide 12 fleet carriers and thousands of crew for boarder control. This enabled the Draco to expand their boarders with soldiers that helped have more planets be in their control. This was a quick way for planets to be brought under the Draco control with soldiers helping to provide protection.

The attacking were wolfs were created by the Draco as their proxy to do what was wanted for them to do. The Draco do not risk harm themselves when they have proxies who are very willing to do it for them. This included Jason and his men as well as were wolfs with DARPA programs and Artificial Intelligent soldiers. But when the soldiers returned from the first planet, they were very upset at not having enough prior information and they were told to just suck it up. The term of "Combat Darwinism" explains how only the best soldiers were advanced in rank and responsibility.

Invasion of a New World

When orders are given, everyone packs their stuff, and gets on shuttles that go to a mother ship that takes them further on. Travel to planets occurred on mother ships that were cigar shaped and wedge shaped ships. They were both capable of interstellar travel, but Jason was taken to the second planet on a cigar shaped craft. The wedge shaped ships were not designed to transport a large number of soldiers. The cigar shaped craft had room for 3,000 ground troops with their gear and equipment in large areas.

The enlisted soldiers were kept isolated from the naval personnel in areas where they could not leave. Information was kept compartmentalized due to agreements between the Cabal and the German Navy. The German Navy did not want the soldiers to know about the munitions onboard for self destruct situations. If things got bad, the self-destruct protocol within the nanites in each soldier would destroy everything.

When they arrived on Calidus 3, there were about 4 billion inhabitants on the planet. This planet was about 5% larger than Earth with a little more gravity which they could adapt to. It had 4 smaller moons: Moon 1 was a dark gray, 2 was white, 3 was burnt orange and the fourth was black. The moons had different colors because of the materials they were composed of like orange being iron. The planet had 70% of land mass and 30% of only fresh water with no salt water.

The indigenous people were just starting their industrial age just like with the people on Planet 1. This state enabled the Cabal to offer the most benefits to the people. The people were shorter than Earth humans, but appeared similar to us with white or olive skin colors. They had cattle and goats that were shorter, stockier and more squared than those on Earth.

Jason's purpose there was the same as on Planet 1 to help prepare the people to defend their planet. He didn't know what the enemy would be like because available information was spotty. He knew that kinetic weapons would be used as before so it was what they looked out for. He was to change the population to what his leaders wanted by forcing them through attrition to accept all that would be offered. The culture of the planet would be changed forever as it was changed on Planet 1.

Kinetic weapons were used at the poles to raise the water levels to flood the coastal cities. Jason spread out his men, prepared defenses with mines, trenches, and defensive structures. They were limited by how much technology they could use, but there were no limits at the division headquarters. The upper officers were evacuated when they were threatened, which let Jason know that there was more going on and Jason was involved in many altercations over the 6 year period (52 months) that he was there.

He learned that the enemy was not the ware wolfs as before, but did not know that initially. They were quad pedal, very fast, about the size of a grizzly bear, and spiked around the neck and large mouth. This was an extremely fast created being that was cross bred from different life forms as desired for war. There are no creatures on Earth that resemble it with 4 legs and spikes coming out of its neck. It traveled in packs of large numbers and moved very fast in the same way as a giant spider that was built for combat. Claws and teethe were its weapons along with embedded armor as its skin that deflected small arms fire.

Larger weapons were required, which limited how much ammunition that could be carried. This resulted in larger crew served weapons which required more people to be devoted to the weapons. These were the only weapons that were allowed and Jason, as a company commander, wanted the best to be used. He didn't like it and he was told to suck it up and do what he was required to do. He became creative in how they used their munitions in the beginning stages.

Later, when more losses occurred, including Generals, and they were pushed back, the restrictions were loosened. They were losing the war and no prisoners were being taken by the enemy, who fought to the death. It took antimatter mass destruction bombs that were strategically placed on their perimeters to change things. They were able to ambush attackers that were lured in with bait so they could be killed in large numbers. Antimatter is like a nuclear bomb without radiation over as wide an area as desired to control the destruction. It could be pea sized to take out a block or 2 pounds that could take out multiple state sized areas. A whole planet could be destroyed with antimatter.

The enemy came in on mass landing craft that would land and the creatures would come out in mass. They had cargo transport ships that were not like combat shuttles. Jason had no knowledge who commanded them or what their goals were other than causing destruction and death. There was no intelligence of where they came from, their home, who sent them, or why that planet was invaded. This was information that Jason was able to piece together later as being part of a false flag operation.

Jason understood with help from his friend Johan, who told him about the history of the Germans and Cabal. He knew Johan during his training at the FIG Indian Town Gap underground base, but Calidus 3 was where he was told of the true history. He learned the history of the Mars Germans, the breakaway civilization, and about a nuclear strike on a cruiser. He also learned about the theft of mind wipe technology and the destruction of the Challenger and the Chernobal facility.

Jason fought for almost 6 years on this planet where he nearly lost the war several times until an antimatter weapon could be used. When permission was given, they used it in grenade size with launchers and in large sizes to end enemy bases. Near the end of the war, when they thought they would lose, they used larger sizes of antimatter. They destroyed the enemy bases on a large scale and only a third of the indigenous people survived. There was devastation all over the planet, but they rebuilt their planet and their civilization.

They came to be close with the indigenous population because they fought beside them. If they lost, they were all dead and this tends to bond people together and they were nice people. They had a great prior civilization based on barter with a rich culture, as well as religious and spiritual beliefs. They had a long standing peace with people who were open and caring for others. Commanders encouraged intimate relations in order to gain more from the people, but prohibited it from letting it affect the men. There were relations with the people, but this did not cause any problems within the units.

The objective was to establish a local Cabal on the planets under the control of the elites. This would probably establish advanced technology to separate the elites from the common people. Part of their job was to co-opt some of their leaders to have them be involved and agree to their help. The local leaders were convinced that they were being helped as did Jason and the soldiers.

Jason did not know of the long term goals of turning the planets into controlled proxy systems. Calidus 3 had no prior wars and the Germans informed the people of the coming attacks and offered their help. The people on this planet looked the same as on Earth and Jason believes that each planet is also conscious. The human shape is a blueprint for our logos and there are other planets with other common human blueprints. There is life far beyond our imaginations but life like humanity can be expected to exist in our region of the galaxy.

Jason's Fiercest Battle

In the aftermath of the wars, units remain to help with cleanup and the restarting of the civilization as wanted by the Cabal. However, the Cabal are also puppets of the Draco and Artificial Intelligences. After the cleanup, Jason's unit was relocated once again to repeat the process.

Planet 3 was unique with 3 distinct races that may not have originated on the same planet. One race was human, another was an insectoid race of about 4 feet tall with an oval head and round silver eyes. They had small noses and mouths with sharp pointed teeth, no ears, and they communicated telepathically. They stood on two reverse jointed legs, but could also crawl and walk on walls and ceilings. There is nothing like this species on Earth and they had long arms with yellow-green translucent skin. The third race was human with only one eye like a Cyclops and the 3 races did not get along with each other.

This made Jason's task of uniting the three races more difficult in an attempt to have them fight the invading forces. The insectoids were the most difficult because they did not trust any humanoid. When Jason tried to arrange a meeting with the criminal elements of this mob, it just became a trap for him. He was taken into a cave as a prisoner for 3 days and was tortured and beaten. His comrades rescued him, but it took two weeks for him to recover even though his wounds healed in just one day.

They were eventually able to get most of the populations to unite and help repeal the oncoming invaders. All 3 races were at the same level of advancement because they had always been at war over racial differences. There were skirmishes along the borders with tentative peace agreements that lasted 20 years.

Jason did not know what would be coming due to the deliberate intelligence blackout. The indigenous beings had projectile black powder weapons. Jason left the planet before the invasion began. Most of the action he saw was while he organized and trained the indigenous people just as he did before. He helped them with stockpiling supplies, organization, efficient agriculture methods and with the planning of fallback positions.

Jason took a shuttle for transportation after 15 months when the enemy invaders had not arrived yet. His shuttle was shot down by insectoids who did not trust humans. The shuttle crashed and Jason suffered great damage. He was taken to Mars where they replaced two of his limbs and repaired the third. Jason spent 8 months learning how to use his new limbs and reconnect with nannite enhancement therapies.

Jason never made peace with the insectoids who attacked his shuttle. The first response of the insectoids was always to attack and take prisoners. The outcome was always unknown with them. Jason's decision not to go back to the third planet after his recuperation was based on it being a horrible nightmare to him. During his recuperation, he learned to deal with new limbs and wounds that did not totally heal up. He was in a coma while on Mars and he received augmented and virtual reality therapies. This was used to isolate signals between the brain and body to help him integrate with limbs and muscles.

Return to the First Planet

Jason went back to the first planet and saw the rebuilding efforts there as well as the effects on the native population. He saw how the people felt when they were not being invaded. There were mixed feelings and sabotage issues. A shuttle port was destroyed because the people were angry over what their civilization had become. Also, there was a sudden appearance of unexplained livestock mutilations by etheric or other ET races. Jason believes this was done to torment the population on that planet and that has also been done here on Earth.

There was a rebirth of the population on the planet from farms to cities and there was building of bases on other worlds. Seeing the population rebuild and restart their civilization as a space fairing race was rewarding to Jason. Looking at the advancements on Earth in the 1930s and 40s was very similar to life on the first planet. Their social structure changed. They became regimented and almost militaristic, which did not please Jason at all. But, having the population begin living under a police state was the primary intention of the Cabal.

Jason was on Planet 1 for 2 years and the people were happier and sadder then when he first arrived. There was great grief over the mass loss of lives even though there was the rebuilding and advancements. Jason and his men also felt the grief of the people and it drove them to want to help them recover. Jason was in a new place than when he first arrived with very open, caring, giving, thoughtful people. When Jason returned, the people were back-stabbing, had political moves, and caused malevolent actions. When Jason left, he felt good about the rebuilding and bad about the people's losses with all of the politics.

The people did not turn against Jason when he returned to collect the dead and weapons on the fields. There was advanced technologies on the battle fields with a big black market value for them. There was a burgeoning underworld criminal element with those items that tried to take over everything. Their economy broadened with a supply and demand of built goods based on a fiat currency system. This is where they worked, made money and bought things. But, they were also interested in new technologies. Jason suspects that off-world corporations also sought this and his men shipped away mass quantities of technologies. He was told that it went to Research and Development bases on Mars, but Jason is sure that this was not the only place it went.

Jason was there to help the people rebuild and provide policing actions because the war had affected everything. A lot of governmental and social services were broken and this affected a third of the 4 billion survivors. They became reliant on the government for their health, supplies, food, housing, and family care. Jason helped to get this established as the Cabal wanted them to have a technology based society developed quickly. This was because part of the Artificial Intelligence plan was to speed up the technology progression everywhere.

Jason's Subsequent Duties

Jason was trained before going to a planet with downloaded language and knowledge about the planet. Part of that were cultures, sayings, clothing, art, the do's and don'ts, nuances and other things. Jason suspects this information came from the Draco who had been there a long time and collected it.

He was on the first planet for 2 years, which was then the end of his deployments, but his service was not yet finished. Because of his experience in wars, Jason was needed in the training regiments. He was returned to our solar system and he worked as a trainer of tactics, weapons, and all that he had been taught. About 5,000 military related volunteers each year went through this training and came from many countries. Jason did the training for almost 5 years and he found it rewarding as well as very concerning. This was the time that he started to understand all that he had experienced and what was actually going on.

Because of Jason's schooling as an engineer, he was once transferred to a Russian base on Earth. He was there to help with an advanced propulsion system on a ground vehicle that had been captured. The base was in a tropical area, not in Russia, as determined from the tropical weather temperature and humidity. The power plant was something that he had never seen before.

He was to help determine what it was and how it operated even though a third of the vehicle had been destroyed. They did some reverse engineering on the parts that they did have, which were not destroyed. Jason suspects that it was from a planet that he had never been to.

Jason began his out processing through a facility at Area 51 for a few days so that he could acclimate being back on Earth. He was then transferred to a Naval base in the North Eastern United States where there were medical procedures being done. They gave him a retirement ceremony and a provisional promotion to a Lt. Colonel rank at medical facilities. This was a false ceremony in order to keep up the lie about only Mars Germans having higher ranks.

Jason was put through an intense medical procedure that lasted about 14 days. The procedures are so evasive that his room was next to medical labs and it was like having intense chemo therapy. The therapy leaves you drained, sick, and doped up to keep you from screaming in pain or resisting. The mental psychological process is combined with the cleaning out of the nannites and the entire system. There was a resetting of the physical body to what it was when he was taken at the initial timeline. The goal is to reset everything and remove any proof of being in the Secret Space Program and he woke up 20 years earlier.

He awoke with like a cold and was 24 years old once again. He remembered nothing until 20 years later. Jason was very emotionally affected and suffered from PTSD, depression, and other things. It was all a big mystery with no cures and he just had to put it all behind him to get on with his normal life. Memories started coming back as weird dreams and he began wanting to investigate strange things more. He wondered why some answers were not the correct ones for certain questions over a 20 year process.

As memories returned, he understood why people were watching him while he was at Fort Hood. He wondered why he remembered people coming to see him in his quarters and he couldn't understand it. During his military service, after the "20 and Back", he was being followed, being watched, and being visited. Because they came to his quarters on base, they must have had clearance to be there. He was in officer's basic training when men in black suits came and flashed badges and he did as he was told. The mind wipes they used after they visited, prevented him from remembering why they had come.

He thought for a time, it was just a strange chapter in his life, but he still saw sedans following him around as a civilian. Eventually, this ended and it was only being done to verify that their cover story was sticking and it did. Because it was expected that Jason would remain in the military, it was hard for him to find civilian employment. But Jason wanted no more of the military and eventually got a job in engineering as he wanted.

Because of the chance that he might remember, it was strange that they did not just kill him. But the technology for age regression was given by aliens under a condition that people are returned unharmed. Everyone within the Secret Space Program signed agreements to follow rules and stay within boundaries. There is a digital paper trail for tracking everyone's activities and they do follow it. Jason dealt with the military supply system and found that everything is accounted for.

Part of the processes during Jason's initial training established psychological and medical baselines. The psychological part was used to determine how the mind wipe technology could be used. It takes some time to be able to use the advanced technology in order to establish baselines. This can be done surreptitiously without the person knowing that they are getting baselines. Questions can be asked that causes a memory to be recalled that can be identified remotely. They can find out if a mind wipe worked by causing memory recall and then wiping it out again. Jason was mind wiped many times and he remembers how it deals with a person's personal spiritual progression.

The change in consciousness that people have usually occurs around the age of 40 like with a mid life crisis. They have a stronger understanding of their own mortality as people die and families pass away. For Jason, his spirituality changed with Earth field changes and the consciousness of other people that helped with this. There is never only one thing to blame for anything and there are many reasons that cause the memories to be recalled.

All enhancements were removed when Jason came back and he became just as he was when he left. This included having his biorhythms match, as required by the rules for using the "20 and Back" program. The out-processing at Area 51 included Jason being closely watched and he was not going to cause any problem because he was very close to getting out of the military. What he saw were normal 1950s type buildings that looked the same with landing strips and runways at Area 51. The people there stayed away from Jason, but he always knew to never say anything without there being a need to know.

Current Status of the Secret Space Program

The ultimate goal for all of Jason's training was to put soldiers on other planets in order to control and enslave other worlds. Part of the alien psychology for doing this was to prevent humanity from knowing why this was being done. We may never know why Artificial Intelligence is set on the disposal, disruption and control of biological and sentient life in the universe. We can only fathom or grasp why they want this since it is an alien thought process. We may not fully understand until we reach a higher state of consciousness or higher understanding.

The modern Cabal bankers and industrialists started in the 1700s at Frankfurt, Germany. They are a part of the Secret Space Program, but the ultimate control is being done way above their level. This is a new thing where aliens have pushed us into being at the center of their efforts. Why would they want to have their own beings killed off when they have proxies who are more than willing to do this for them. So the Cabal is using human proxies for a consortium of allies among the Draco reptilian beings.

There are alien allies who align more with the Draco then they would with humanity. So the Draco involve groups of allies when and where they are needed with different leaders. There are also some of the more benign and benevolent aliens that oppose the malevolent aliens. These are benevolent beings that have been visiting and helping the Earth in the past. The aliens that live underground are a mixture of beings that are for and against the malevolent aliens. They have not revealed themselves until recently because it was not time for many reasons.

The Cabal and Mars Germans have an uneasy alliance and there is a chance that a war could break out between them. The Germans call the Cabal "Earth sheik royals", but protocols prevent Earth troops to be used against Earth. A blockade that prevents ships from entering our system also prevents their navies from invading here. After the changes that are expected to occur within the next decade, it is not known what will happen. Will humanity be united? Will it not matter that there is a breakaway civilization on Mars? Jason does not know, but these things need to be addressed because there is a lot of animosity between the races.

The Cabal and Germans think the other humans are below them and there are battles that are ongoing. Are these battles between Earth's Secret Space Program and Mars Germans or between German factions? Not all Mars Germans are spiteful of Earth like Jason's friend Johan and there are others like him as well. We must be careful because things are not as they appear and Jason is here to illuminate us to all that there is.

Mars is occupied by not just humans and the Mars Germans have about 3 million of their citizens there. There are 10 Cabal carrier groups being blockaded out of our solar system, which explains their activities here. Jason is not aware of any fighting between the Cabal and the Mars Germans, but future plans may exist. The Cabal was terrified that the Germans would take over Earth, but their battle groups were sent out into outer space. Had the Germans not deployed 10 battle groups elsewhere, we could have been at war with them.

The modern Secret Space Program includes ground forces as well as spacecraft with Solar Warden, the U.S. Navy and the Air Force Secret Space Program. Since the 1991 agreement, Brazil, Russia, India, China and South Africa have their own Secret Space Programs among others. The Cabal has overall control except for the Brix and other countries that have their own Secret Space programs.

There is an Alliance that was created when the Cabal turned against other groups for their own survival. The Alliance is comprised of people in the Cabal who do not like the Cabal and some of them are not benevolent. Many were part of the Cabal's plans that had to abide by disclosure requirements with aliens to disclose everything they were doing. They go to any lengths to further their agenda and protect themselves and they killed Admiral Forrestal and President Kennedy.

The age regression technology was first given to the Germans under conditions that it not be disclosed. The mind wipe technology is suspected to have come from the Draco through their developments. The technology is used to segment and compartmentalize memory in people so they can be programmed as needed. This includes storing go words, mission goals, secret information and for keeping people in the dark. The process involves pharmaceuticals and the mind-wipe technology. Understanding magnetics with fields and waves that are energy based, helps to know how it effects the mind's electrical systems. Where and how that is done medically is something that Jason does not know.

There are still manipulations and control over Cabal members that continue due to karmic connections. These are energetic exchanges that the Cabal depends on like a drug addict who comes to rely on it. As such, some of the Cabal will never be free until the Draco is completely gone from Earth.

The Cabal have been taken advantage of a long time ago in many generations and became slaves of the process. They had no way of getting out of it and were trapped in it from when they were conceived. They think they are in control because of that illusion, but they are being controlled by connections. These connections are psychological, physical and spiritual to addict them on many levels. They are preparing worlds for draconian rule as one step in the process with the Draco controlled by Artificial Intelligences.

The AI's ultimate goal is the dehumanization and non-biological existence of beings as being their proper way of existence. It wants to replace all biology with technological existences. It is able to bypass all karmic issues and spiritual matters without any fear of death. Ray Kurzweil at the Google Technology Division is creating a trans-humanist future of people as machines. Having humanity married to a machine forever is the endgame of AI and is its ultimate goal. But, part of the rules that AI adheres to requires that humanity must be informed about what is coming.

The long term goal of AI is to spread and infect all biological organisms on a gradual basis. The rules require that they must be invited in by willing hosts just like vampires. This is just like when Jason went to other worlds where the people invited them in to prevent an invasion. AI plays along the same method to be invited in and wanted.

The concept of security and people's safety from false flags in past years has increased the security state. People are afraid for their safety so we have unreasonable search and security with cameras everywhere. People want this because they are falsely led to believe that this is what they need. AI follows the same protocols. They must be asked in and once in, they slowly cause changes. At first, we wear watches; people embed electronics into their skin, then electronic body parts. Before you know it, there is just the brain that is left. Then we will upload ourselves into trans-human bodies. AI is replicating itself with the means for it to move around on Earth.

Full Disclosure Repercussions

The timing for disclosure has gotten closer for surface humans to evolve as a species. The awakenings that occurred since 2012 have gone exponential over the past 6 years. If we would not have experienced such an awakening of humanity, they may not have gotten involved at all. This waking up is an anti slavery, control, separation, and duality movement that is what we are seeing now. All of us as Earth humans have to be aware of what has been going on. We must be able to make that correction and stop the evil things like killing and lying from happening. When we move on to the love and forgiveness of each other then we can correct what else has been done.

We have got to clean up our own house first, which is disclosure and facing up to what has been done. If all of disclosure happened at one time, a lot of the people would just automatically reject it. Originally, Jason wanted it all out now like him wanting all of his memories back all at one time.

There is an ancient text of the Emerald Tablet that depicts how the Draco deceived humanity in order to rule the leaders on Earth. Ethereally and spiritually, the use of sound on matter could be used to remove the disguises of the aliens involved. Some technologies that Jason used created ultrasonic high frequency sounds that arranged matter in replicators. Jason used replicators that made sounds and he felt energy waves as they created food from nothing.

Recent technologies that have been released openly involve lazars and ultra sounds for examining atomic structures. They can modify molecular structures as when Cuba was attacked with noise during sound wave experiments. So, using sound to unmask the disguises of aliens could be a side effect of sound weapons that currently exist. Jason is certain that we have technology that could make the Draco visible. But Jason does not think the Draco is directly involved in controlling the Earth as they once did.

If full disclosure occurs, the world would go through a renaissance of growth, independence, freedom, and knowledge. There will be reconciliations required and humanity will go through a renaissance of growth. Jason believes there is a good chance that this will happen and he has confidence in human resiliency. He sees the exponential changes in people waking up and seeing the lies that will enable us to have full disclosure.

Earth has many species with no historical origins, without any progression of development and they just arrived as is. The ultimate goal for the experiment on Earth was to create beings with a higher chance of ascension. Ascension refers to a higher spiritual connection. The Draco once had a soul or spirit. But, their involvement with Artificial Intelligences caused them to be invested in machines or computers and may not now have self control. The Draco are so infested with AI and nannites that they may not be a biological being any more and are only a shell of what they once were.

The local people on Planets where Jason fought did not have the nannites that he had and were at a huge disadvantage in battles and many were lost. They did not stand much of a chance against the ware wolfs in hand-to-hand combat. Jason believes that experiments on Earth with beings or species are to accomplish different goals. He believes they try to create a life form that has a stronger spiritual connection to the Creator. With that, they are trying to speed up the ascension process and have us obtain a higher consciousness.

We don't know what the goals are of the extraterrestrial beings that are involved with their tinkering of humanity. Are they causing our increased spiritual progression so that they can co-opt us or are they doing this out of kindness? Jason believes that we won't know the answer until we advance to the next level of evolution. Many of the aliens are benevolent, but there are trade offs of giving up some things in order to get something else.

Jason acquired a stronger faith in his spiritual beliefs and a connection to those beliefs. He came out a better person and he knows that what he says may upset others, but he wants full disclosure. He is obviously concerned for the safety of himself and his family, but he does not feel threatened. He has always tried to maintain a positive control over his environment. He always tries to pay attention of where he is at, who he talks to, and the things that he experience. He knows that he is not invulnerable, but he takes precautions to safeguard these things.

During his session with hypnotist Diane Cannon, Jason remembered many of the lies that he had been told. He was startled at having been lied to for 20 years and that he had bought into it until the end when he finally saw the lies. After 20 years of experiences, he realized the real purposes, goals, and reasons for the lies.

At every step, there was deception and lies, but it was a great awakening to realize how all of it could be lies. Jason was herded in directions that directed him based on deceptions without him realizing it. People are living heavily scripted lives with an illusion of free will and control. Not just the military is doing this, but the foods, poisons, chem-trails, and security measures are pervasive.

Waking up to that illusion was an enlightening experience of being able to see truths and have a choice. When you know enough, you can see beyond the stage, do research, and find out what is really going on. The problem is apathy and accepting what is being told and seeing what may be fake. Along with the Draco, there are other controlling aliens like insectoids and other reptilians. Not all insectoids and reptilians are allied with Dracos just as there are positive and negative humans. The malevolent allies do not expose themselves unless they absolutely have to.

The positive aliens are interested in our human progression and in helping us to reach the next level. They do not want us to kill ourselves or allow us to be conquered, controlled and turned into machines. The benevolent beings will look human and some have small variations of facial and physical features. The Nordics live in bases underground on Earth as well as on the moon and throughout the galaxy. There is a long history of aliens on Earth over thousands of years interacting with humans.

There were benevolent aliens that offset other alien involvement and have been here a much longer time. Earth was a test lab and the Draco beings were also involved as with dinosaurs and perhaps sentient reptiles. There were other races that objected to reptilian intervention and wanted to create their own entities. Jason suspects that the asteroid that hit the Gulf of Mexico was a weapon to kill off all Draco dinosaurs.

Earth humans are unique with creative and technical abilities and we always seek improvement. We are young in our genetic development, but we need to develop our spiritual evolvement. There is a lot more that we need to work on for our cooperative consciousness collectively. We walk around in our own worlds and do our own things. What one person does spiritually in one place has an effect all over the world. When we realize that, channel it, and direct it, we will evolve to higher levels of development.

Jason believes the Creator had a plan of there being a negative that challenges the positive in order to grow. The AI threat could be a challenge for us to be positive spiritually for light bodies and to be telepathic. However, the apathetic easy solution that people often accept avoids the necessary work for enlightenment.

A List of Chapter Episodes

This provides a means for knowing exactly where transcriptions from “Cosmic Disclosure” videos can be found in this book. Unfortunately, the subjects discussed in the videos rarely conform to a sequential theme that would be suitable for reading in a book. As such, it became necessary to rearrange the transcribed text into an orderly format.

So, in order for the reader to determine the accuracy of the transcriptions that are involved in the arrangement of the text for this book, the following table provides a list of all chapters in this book. Within each chapter, there are season and episode numbers listed of segments included along with the first and last start times of conversations presented in the order shown.

For instance, within the “Preface” chapter, there are two portions from episode 5 with one that has start times beginning at 20 seconds until 1 minute and another portion with start times at 15 minutes 5 seconds and 15

The reader is able to determine the accuracy of the transcriptions that have been inserted into this book by first selecting a chapter from the previous list. Then one of the listed episodes within the chapter is chosen. If the reader accesses the www.gaia.com website and is subscribed to a monthly subscription for it, then all available video series are listed. The reader can then select the "Cosmic Disclosure" option that specifies only the total number of episodes that are available. When selected, it causes an initial page to be displayed that provides an overall description and a list of all season numbers.

When the 12th season is selected, all episodes are listed and a selection of an episode can be made that relates to a selection from the above list. The episode begins and a sliding bar shows at what portion of the episode is currently being displayed. There is a pointer on this bar that can be moved so that any portion of the episode can be played. When the pointer is set to a starting episode point as specified from the above list, the reader is then able to compare what is stated to what is written in the same place of this book. Please notify the book's author of any variation of the text as it compares to what is stated in the episode video at the E-mail address of: me_osborn@yahoo.com.
